

Residential Water Heater

Water heating is the second-largest energy expense in most households, accounting for around 18% of the power bill. That means the type of water heater and how you use it is very important. Water heaters and heat pump water heaters have come a long way in efficiency standards. New energy-efficient storage water heaters contain high levels of insulation around the tank to reduce standby heat loss. Heat pump water heaters, like your heat pump HVAC unit, utilize the air around them to heat your water. Both can save you up to $550 per year.

We understand cost is always a factor when upgrading your equipment so Harrison REMC would like to help you with that by providing a small incentive. Simply fill out the application in its entirety and send it in with your invoice noting manufacturer/brand, model #, cost of your new water heater, and proof of your water heater's UEF rating.

We also suggest checking out Indiana's Residential and Homeowner Incentives webpage for more information on tax credits and their upcoming energy efficiency incentive programs.
